Eval. Notes:
BEHAVIOR NOTE: This dog retreats to the back of the kennel when I approach. when I toss her treats she readily receives them. as I opened the kennel door her ears go down and she takes up a C shape body. I wait at the entrance with the leash handing over it to allow her to walk into it herself. She hesitantly walks into the leash while coming out of the kennel then walks on a loose leash out to the potty yard. After doing her business I go in to get her from the yard and she tries her best to avoid getting the leash on her. I was able to get it on her by going slow and giving her a little time to settle down. Walked back into the kennel without conflict.

Eval. Notes:

BEHAVIOR NOTE: This dog is postured with the hips down, tail between her legs, whale eyes, and ears back as I approach the kennel. she retreats to the back of the kennel but lets me put the leash on her. As I walk her I had to go slow and give her time when she got over-stimulated. She was very receptive to treats so much so I could coerce her to keep moving by giving her treats when she got overwhelmed. she would flinch when people would move too fast near her or at loud noises. I had to lay out treats into her kennel to get her to go back in.

BEHAVIOR NOTE: 04/19/24 13:43 Yesterday was lying on blanket but stood up, stretching and wagging tail. Leashed and took him out to potty before moving him to endcap. He walked with loose leash, tappy toes, tail curled up and swaying as he walked, wagging when I baby talked. Assisted vet tech with completing work up; had no reaction to drawing blood or vaccines, but was very resistant to getting dewormer, moving head and pulling away, using front paws to push hands, ultimately was not able to give him dewormer via syringe, just placed it in canned food in his kennel. As soon as we finished workup, we baby talked and pet him and he became wiggly again.

Eval. Notes:

BEHAVIOR NOTE: As I approached her kennel I observed that she kept her kennel clean throughout the night, she was sitting at the front of kennel door while presenting trembling body, rolling over exposing belly and squinty eyes. Once leashed she walked with a lowered body/head, tail tucked with just the tip wagging, Zig-zagging behind me jumping on the back of my leg, then would occasionally try biting on the leash throwing herself in the air. I was able to redirect her with baby talking and coaxing her to continue walking.

Eval. Notes:

BEHAVIOR NOTE: While cleaning the floors, I noticed that trina remained in the back of her kennel but would pace from side to side before the drain, while still avoiding stepping on it while holding a low tail wag and worried facial expression. I attempted to cover the drain to lure her to the other side but she still remained there and began to spin. I leashed her from the other side and placed her on the opposite side to which she went in readily to take her treats. Later, when placing smell good on the floors, Trina began to get very vocal in kennel as I left the front of her kennel and would continue to bark with dilated pupils until treats were tossed over. I kept her busy for a few minutes with a raw hide along with smeared churu.
