Dear Denver Harbor Homeowner:

Mayor Bill White has embarked on a program to improve the energy efficiency of homes in the Denver Harbor community. The energy efficiency measures are approved by the Public Utility Commission of Texas and should result in lower utility bills and increased comfort to you as a homeowner.

The program, known as the Residential Energy Efficiency Program (REEP), is administered by the City of Houston and is provided to you at no cost. Your home will first be tested and evaluated to determine the most effective energy efficiency measures to install. The energy efficiency measures may include weatherizing, sealing, caulking, duct efficiency, insulation, water saving measures and compact fluorescent lamps, depending upon the results of the evaluation.

Third party contractors participating in the City's REEP program will provide the services. The program is simple. To participate you need to provide your name, address and a daytime phone number. A contractor will contact you to schedule an appointment and request that you sign an agreement that permits the City to pull your electricity billing and usage history from CenterPoint Energy and allow the measures to be installed and inspected. Your usage history will help us measure your usage before and after the installation of measures.

The City of Houston is pleased to take this opportunity to implement this program in your community. If you would like to participate, please complete the attached form and return to my attention

Thank you for your anticipated cooperation. Please call me directly at 713.247.2741 if you have any questions or concerns.

Sincerely,

Issa Z. Dadoush, P.E.
