Neither Rain Nor Sleet Will Stop Arbor Day But it Will Delay Start Time to 10:00 AM

28th Annual Arbor Day Celebration Takes Place in 3 Parks January 25, 2014

Despite the winter weather, the Houston Parks and Recreation Department (HPARD) will hold its 28th Annual Arbor Day Celebration on January 25, 2014, at Memorial Park. Due to weather conditions, the start time will be adjusted as follows:

- 9:15 am - Registration
- 10:00 am - Arbor Day Ceremony
- 10:30 am - Planting Following Ceremony

The official Arbor Day Ceremony will recognize HPARD partners who have worked to plant over 105,723 trees in 31 parks and greenspaces across the city between October 2013 and the end of February 2014. Those partners include: the Apache Corporation, Trees for Houston, The Texas A&M Forest Service, TXU Energy, Memorial Park Conservancy, Hermann Park Conservancy, the Tu Bishvat Jewish New Year for Trees, AmeriCorps, and the Houston Parks Board.

The official Arbor Day celebration ceremony will be held at Memorial Park on January 25, 2014, where Apache Corporation volunteers will plant 5,025 trees in the area along West Memorial Loop Drive following the 10:00 a.m. ceremony.

“Given the changes in the weather, we are more than grateful to Apache and their volunteers for coming out to support Houston’s Urban Forest. We always plant rain or shine, but this year’s unexpected chill has us moving the start time back a bit to accommodate for the cold,” said Joe Turner, Director, Houston Parks and Recreation Department. “This year the volunteers are going above and beyond their usual commitment, and we appreciate their dedication.”

Since 2005, Apache has donated over 59,900 trees to HPARD. This Arbor Day season they will donate 10,025 more trees. In addition to Memorial Park, there will be planting activities in two other Houston parks on January 25th. Start time for these two parks will also be 10:00am. These events will be conducted by HPARD partners and their volunteers.
