

5 BIG QUESTIONS

TO ASK SCHOOLS

Whether you're going back to your current school or looking for a new school, here are a few questions to help you decide if a school is right for your family.

Is transportation provided? If so, do you have a plan to continue transportation with social distancing in mind?

Are you offering parents the choice between virtual and in-person classes?

If so, is my student locked into the choice I make at the time of enrollment for the entire semester or school year?

If I choose virtual or hybrid classes for my student, how does that impact their access to school facilities, extracurricular activities, and meal services?

If you are offering virtual classes, how are you supporting families with technical challenges?

How are you measuring student learning and what are your grading policies this year? Will these change as social distancing mandates change in the future?
