WHAT WORKS?

The programs listed below are a compilation of initiatives, campaigns, and programs that are research informed, apply best practices and have the potential to be implemented in various settings. Below are some examples of these types of programs for bullying intervention and prevention.

Program	What Is It?	Website
Steps to Respect *	A school-wide program. All adults in school are trained to recognize and deal with bullying. Classroom lessons teach youth how to make friends, recognize feelings and recognize, refuse and report bullying.	http://www.cfchildren.org/steps-to-respect
Second Step*	There are five program themes in this curriculum — empathy and communication, bullying prevention, emotion management, problem-solving and substance abuse prevention.	http://www.secondstep.org/
Bullying: Ignorance is No Defense	The goal is to educate youth on how to use alternative methods for resolving issues rather than resort to bullying. Curriculum includes opportunities for students to understand proper problem solving strategies.	http://antibullyingprograms.org/Programs.html#HighSchool

*Denotes evidence based program as listed by SAMHSA—National Registry of Evidence-based Programs and Practices.

Recommendations:¹⁴

- Increase implementation of secondary and tertiary bullying prevention programs.
- Anti-bullying programs need to consider incorporating discussion of sexual harassment and homophobic language.
- Engage and educate school personnel, parents and youth in discussions regarding bullying.
- Build safe environments at home, school, and in community settings.
- Increase services and support to help students who have been bullied, are bullying others or see bullying.

Related Policies and Policy Implications:¹⁵

Currently, there are no federal laws directly addressing bullying.

States vary on anti-bullying laws and policies. 1 state (Montana) only has an anti-bullying policy; 8 states (including Texas) only have anti-bullying laws; the remaining 41 states have both anti-bullying laws and policies.

The Texas Education Code, Chapter 37 Section 37.001(a.7-a.8) requires that each school district’s Student Code of Conduct have a local policy that:

- prohibits bullying, harassment, and making hit lists and ensures that district employees enforce those prohibitions.
- provides methods and options for: managing students in the classroom and on school grounds, disciplining students, and preventing and intervening in student discipline problems.
- Texas law also covers cyberbullying.
