TYPE OF APPROVAL REQUESTED: Landmark Designation

HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE SUMMARY:

The Webber House was individually listed in the National Register of Historic Places on May 14, 1984. It is included within the boundaries of Houston Heights, which was designated as a Multiple Resource Area (MRA) by the National Register Program on June 22, 1983. The house is unusual in style and material for Heights Boulevard, but its main significance is the builder, Samuel Webber, a brick mason. The use of brick for a Queen Anne residence in Houston was uncommon, and this example remains one of the most substantial turn-of-the-century houses of its date and style in the Heights, if not the city.

HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE:

The two-story brick house was constructed circa 1908 in the Queen Anne style with Colonial Revival influences. It features a hipped roof with a gable end bay on one corner and a round tower on another corner of the front façade. There is a porte-cochere on one side. The attached front porch has Doric half columns and is supported by brick piers. The house also has a recessed entrance with a single door, and windows with one-over-one lights.

The house is unusual in style and material for Heights Boulevard, but its main significance is its builder, Samuel H. Webber, a brick mason. Mr. Webber had previously built a house at 407 Heights Blvd. for his family, but in 1907 he purchased this lot and built a larger, finer residence. One of his daughters occupied the house until the late 1970s. Mr. Webber and his houses illustrate the material expressions of mobility on the part of the growing middle-class population of the Heights as the area developed. Mrs. Webber was active in the social life of the Heights, and was a charter member of the Heights Women's Club. The use of brick for a Queen Anne residence in Houston was uncommon, and this example remains one of the most substantial turn-of-the-century houses of its date and style in the Heights, if not the city.

Houston Heights was designated a MRA because it was at one time an independent municipality. Within its original boundaries are numerous historic buildings, many of which are individually listed in the National Register of Historic Places. Houston Heights was developed by the Omaha and South Texas Land Company in 1891. It was incorporated as a city in 1896, and at that time, was the earliest and largest totally planned community in Texas. It flourished as a distinct municipality until the residents voted to be annexed by the City of Houston in 1918.

Today, the area still maintains the feeling of a distinctive, self-contained “small town” with its predominantly small 19th-century, one-story and two-story Victorian-era homes, and numerous early 20th-century bungalow style buildings. It also boasts a thriving business district on 19th Street (now predominantly antique shops and restaurants) and a large industrial district west of the business section. Also located in the neighborhood are a number of historic churches, theatres, corner stores, private and public parks, municipal facilities, schools, the Heights Branch Library, and the original Houston Heights City Hall and Fire Station building, both of which have been designated as Landmarks as well as Protected Landmarks of the City of Houston.

At the March 13, 1997 public hearing of the Houston Archaeological and Historical Commission (HAHC), the HAHC discussed the expiration of the two-year temporary designation of all landmarks that City Council had previously designated when the Historic Preservation Ordinance was adopted on March 1, 1995. Since the designation had expired, the HAHC requested that the planning staff contact the owners of these landmarks to determine their interest in the HAHC initiating an application for permanent Landmark designation. Owners have been contacted on four occasions in the past and advised that the HAHC would initiate the designation of their buildings for them. Most recently, a letter from Mayor Bill White was sent certified on July 11, 2006 to each property owner of a National Register designated site in Houston Heights, once again encouraging the property owner to support the HAHC in initiating the designation of their historic building as a Landmark of the City of Houston. The letter asked that the property owner respond ONLY if they did not want the HAHC to initiate designation, and included a list of the benefits of designation. On August 24, 2006, the HAHC voted unanimously to initiate the designation of this building as a Landmark of the City of Houston, with the application for designation to be considered at the HAHC meeting on September 21, 2006.

The HAHC had previously instructed the planning staff that if any landmark had been designated by the National Register program (N.R.), as a Recorded Texas Historic Landmark (RTHL), a State Archaeological Site (SAL), or a temporary landmark of the City of Houston, then the application would be considered for permanent Landmark designation on that merit alone, because all of the required information has been filed to obtain status. Therefore, regarding the preparation of the application, HAHC agreed to consider the application with minimal information provided to them.

RESTORATION HISTORY/CURRENT CONDITION:

The building has not been altered inappropriately since the National Register designation and is maintained in a historic manner by the current owner.
